Fund Manager Comment

October was not a positive month for Fixed Income as rates moved higher, with Fed cut expectations being lowered with better-than-expected employment data along with stickier inflation. Overall expectation beginning of the month was for two rate cuts in November and December totaling 50 bps but there is a tilt towards a single cut only in November 2024.

During the month US 10 year moved from 3.78% to 4.28%, crossing that important 4% mark since last July. The overall curve from 2Y onwards moved higher by about 50-60 bps during the month amid economic readings indicating overall US economy doing not so bad as expected in September. Furthermore, the uncertainty of a differing policy post-election also played a crucial role in elevating the rates during the month.

Many variables are in play, as the US budget deficit is expected to widen with either of the US administrations in power and a possible reversal in the inflation trend. Therefore, there is a remote possibility of a rate hike and a further elevation of the yield curve from current levels. During the month, Brent ended marginally higher at c. USD 73.16 from c. USD 71.77, with weight of expected lower global demand pulling lower more than the impact created by the geopolitical tensions. The regional IG and HY space remain favorable to their global counterparts and will continue attracting flows from yield-seeking investors.

QNB MENA Debt Fund, after being launched in 2017, has paid 14 coupons. We remain focused on taking advantage of the opportunistic trades apparent in the market. The fund manager has gradually increased the fund's duration to position the fund to an eventual steeper yield curve. Assets of the Fund are satisfactorily deployed as per the investment guidelines and also in line with the selected benchmark, which the fund intends to outperform in the longer run.
